Reps. Polis, Coffman Launch Bipartisan Integrative Health and Wellness Caucus House and Senate Members May Now Join

The Integrative Health Policy Consortium (IHPC) is pleased to announce that Rep. Jared Polis, D-Colo., and Mike Coffman, R-Colo., have launched the Congressional Integrative Health and Wellness Caucus in the House of Representatives.

The Caucus will serve as a non-partisan educational forum for legislators to receive up-to-date information from experts related to best practices and new research on integrative health and wellness approaches, as well as legislative and administrative opportunities. IHPC is working with the Caucus to develop education and information, as well as specific Congressional Briefing sessions.

IHPC encourages advocates for integrative health and wellness to reach out to their House and Senate members to inform and encourage participation in this new Caucus.

Interested House and Senate Members contact the Caucus Co-Founders:

- Congressman Mike Coffman (R-CO-6th)
 - Legislative Director – Jeremy Lippert:
